TEDDY BOIES? KEYSSTONE ISSUE

Colonel's Efforts to Oust Penrose Predominant in Penn State Campaign.

A LIFE-OR-DEATH FIGHT

Moore Chief, Realizing Bitterness of Pennsylvania's G. O. P. Boss, Would Break His Control.

As the scene of the fight and fierce battle between Roosevelt and the elements in the Republican party from whom he would wrest control, Pennsylvania is the observed of all observers in the political arena.

Penrose or Roosevelt, which? It is the issue that obscures all others in the Keystone campaign. Even the candidacy of Gifford Pinchot for Penrose's toga is declared to be secondary with the colonel to his desire to oust Penrose from the small ring of Republican rulers. Moreover, Democrats declare the desire to oust Penrose is so strong, that many Progressives will vote the Democratic ticket in order to insure the downfall of Penrose.

Fight to the Death. Roosevelt realizes that the plan of the men he sought to oust from the party in 1912 is to fight him to the death. The old reactionary wing is putting forward its own candidates. The fight for control is on in earnest between Roosevelt and these influences.

"All three parties have distinct organizations," said Representative Palmer yesterday. "and the real issue is Penroseism." Mr. Palmer has just returned from a trip to Pennsylvania, where he undertook a careful viewing of the field. "Roosevelt realizes that the Progressive party never can win a great national victory, that if he wants to control an election he must do it through the Republican party. He realizes further that the old reactionary circle which was responsible for his leaving the party, is now preparing to strengthen their hold in order to repel any attempt by him to re-enter the party fold. All down the line these men are working—Forsaker in Ohio, Gallinger in New Hampshire, and Penrose in Pennsylvania, candidates for the Senate, and Barnes in New York expecting to have a good deal to do with the selection of the Republican candidate."

Would Break Power. "Roosevelt realizes that if he beats Penrose, through the election of Pinchot or myself, he will have made a big hole in the front of this element. If Penrose is elected it means a big setback for the Progressive Republicans. Penrose realizes how much he has at stake and whom he must fight. He is probably more bitter against Roosevelt than Roosevelt is against him."

"In 1912 the Progressive vote exceeded the Democratic vote by a small margin. I expect the Progressives will retain about 40 per cent of their 1912 vote. That would give the Democrats a clear plurality and spell the elimination of Penrose as a national political factor. The election of Pinchot would give the Progressives renewed strength and make more difficult an amalgamation in time for the national campaign."

Indications are that the Progressives will pay little attention to attacking the Democratic administration or to placing upon the Democratic blame for the existing business depression.

Woe to Penrosists!

"Anyone who seeks now to make political capital out of business depression in Pennsylvania, is playing with a dangerous toy," according to Representative Ruple, Progressive, yesterday. "I think in a few months there will be a disastrous flareback for those gentlemen who are working the States embracing half the population of the country a type of legislation whose purpose is admittedly uniform, namely, to secure for young children home life and the personal care of a good mother."

The athletic events are to begin at 1 p. m. at the 2200 block of M street. The baseball team will play the team of Company K, First Maryland Infantry, of Silver Spring. Music by the Soldier's Home Band will be a feature.

At 6:30 o'clock in the evening the Rev. W. E. Callender will pronounce the invocation after the speech-making will begin. Cornelius W. Cline, president of the Kensington Chamber of Commerce, will deliver the opening address, and Charles Reeves Rowdybush will read the Declaration of Independence.

An exhibition of fireworks will close the events of the day.

NEWLYWED IS PROMOTED. J. B. Cady Made Assistant Chief Clerk in P. G. Department.

John B. Cady, former student of the Business High School of this city, was yesterday made assistant chief clerk of the Postoffice Department.

The promotion comes to Mr. Cady as a wedding present. He is married to Miss Miriam A. Miller, of Chillum, Md., having taken place only last week. He was originally appointed in the postal service November 20, 1904, as a stenographer, at $600 per annum, by transfer from the Navy Department, and has risen steadily through the civil service grades to a clerkship, which he was promoted to July 1, 1913. For some time he has been acting as confidential secretary to First Assistant Postmaster General Roper.

PIGEONS START ON RACE. Released at Glendive, Mont., They Will Make Trip Back Here.

Some of the finest homing pigeon stock of this city was released in Glendive, Mont., yesterday by the mayor of the town and a prominent banker, at the start of a 1,500-mile race back to Washington.

The entries for the race are from members of three different clubs. R. B. Lloyd, of Balltown, Va., entered his best pigeon, known as All Ways, due to the fact that he has flown South, Southwest, Northwest and North, in each instance being sent to the extreme distance of 500 miles, and always being among the winners.

HONOR FOR NAVY HEROES. Two men whose names were not included in Admiral Fletcher's recommendations for gallantry in the action at Vera Cruz, but are mentioned by the commanding officer of the cruiser Chester, will receive letters of commendation from Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

In addition to these letters both men have been advanced to the grade of chief petty officers for conspicuous gallantry at Vera Cruz.

George H. Boyd, quartermaster, USS Chester, and Augustus J. Hallberg, gunner's mate, first class, are the men.

'MOCK HERO,' CRY IN HOUSE; ALSO 'COWARDS'

Indiana Lawmaker Defies Colleague to Introduce No-mileage Bill Buncombe Debate.

The two houses of Congress deflected on the provision in the legislative bill introducing mileage expenses for Senators and Representatives. Each house is standing pat, and in order to get the bill through it may be necessary for President Wilson to act as a referee or mediator. The House wants to fix the mileage allowance at 5 cents instead of 20 cents a mile as at present. The Senate insists that the old rate of 20 cents a mile shall stand. For eighty years or more Congress has been paying its members 20 cents a mile.

There is an element of humor in this mileage squabble. Nobody in Congress really wants a downward revision of the mileage account, but this is the season of political buncombe.

Representative Martin A. Morrison, of Indiana, who is a modest man, does not believe in political "junk." When Representative Zerkel S. Chandler, of Mississippi, wanted the mileage fixed at "10 cents, 5 cents or nothing," up jumped Mr. Morrison.

"I want to ask the gentleman if he has introduced a resolution to strike out the mileage allowance entirely?" he shouted. "Will you vote for it?" asked Mr. Chandler. "How did you vote the other day?"

"I voted with all the cowards every time the question has come before the House," said Mr. Morrison. "I followed the mock heroes every time."

"Does the gentleman consider himself a coward?" asked Mr. Chandler. "I did not say that," replied Mr. Morrison. "I want to quit being guilty of grand larceny and become a thief. Now I want to be honest, and I want you to make the motion, my hero."

This harsh language will not appear in the Congressional Record. It was spoken down at Mr. Chandler's request. He has a primary fight on his hands.

On the rising vote on the mileage proposition 100 members voted for 20 cents a mile and only eighty against it. However, when the roll was called, those who voted in favor of the motion for 20-cent mileage was beaten by a vote of 138 to 125.

Under the Capitol Dome.

The Foreign Relations Committee held a brief session, but did not take up the Nicaragua case. Only routine matters were considered, and an adjournment was taken until next Monday.

The Senate yesterday adopted a resolution introduced by Senator Oliver, of Pennsylvania, authorizing and requesting the President to invite foreign governments to send delegates to the fourth International Congress on Home Education, to be held in Philadelphia September 22-30. The congress will be held under auspices of the International Commission on Congresses on Home Education and Parent-Teacher unions.

FACTS ON MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

Bulletin Just Issued Tells of Laws in Various Countries.

"Laws relating to Mothers' Pensions in the United States, Denmark, and New Zealand" is the title of a publication just issued by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor. It is a bulletin of the Bureau, in which the Secretary Wilson, calls attention to the rapid development of this new type of legislation. Last year more than half of the State legislatures in session had under consideration bills providing for the support of dependent children in the homes. Twenty-one States now have in operation, laws providing aid to mothers in varying sums and under varying conditions. The earliest of these laws was enacted in 1911.

"Thus it will be seen," says Miss Lathrop, "that in two years there has come into existence in States embracing half the population of the country a type of legislation whose purpose is admittedly uniform, namely, to secure for young children home life and the personal care of a good mother."

Maryland Town Plans Big Fourth Celebration.

The athletic events are to begin at 1 p. m. at the 2200 block of M street. The baseball team will play the team of Company K, First Maryland Infantry, of Silver Spring. Music by the Soldier's Home Band will be a feature.

CONDITIONS AT TURKEY PICTURED BY AMERICAN

D. A. Davis, General Secretary of Constantinople Y. M. C. A., Describes Situation as "Miserable."

D. A. Davis, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Constantinople, Turkey, who is visiting Washington for several weeks, stated last night that conditions in Turkey and the Balkans are miserable, except in the principal cities. He said that there is not food enough for the country people, and that they have to depend on the aid of foreigners. Small villages have been burned and the fields ruined, so that the people are homeless and starving.

In the cities, however, conditions are different. Constantinople, especially, has fared well. Only recently street, car, telephone, and electric light systems have been installed there. In addition, the streets are being paved with asphalt and are being cleaned with automobile sprinklers and sweepers.

Mr. Davis praised the Turkish government for its behavior during the recent troubles. He said that as far as possible, the foreigners were protected by the government soldiers, and every precaution taken for their welfare. He also lauded Ambassador Morgenthau, stating that he has been very efficient and helped American institutions through out Turkey. Mr. Morgenthau also stands well in the opinion of Turkish officials.

Another interesting feature of much credit in Mr. Davis' opinion, is Mr. Ravendall, the American Consul-general at Constantinople. Mr. Ravendall, he stated, has brought the true American spirit into Turkey, by his financial and American savings bank, and by being instrumental in having the Hamburg-American Line install direct service between New York and Constantinople.

Mr. Davis added that the Y. M. C. A. in Constantinople had about 500 members during the past year, seventeen nationalities being represented. Mr. Davis expects to leave the United States for Turkey in about seven weeks.

HURRY UP WITH TAXES! Collector's Office Crowded with Citizens "Settling Up."

Personal and water rent taxes and dog licenses kept a big force of clerks busy at the District Building yesterday. It was the first day upon which to file personal taxes for the payment of water bills, and for the purchase of dog tags for the new year.

The receipts for the day were better than for any day in the month. A line of people filed into the office from early morning until the close of the day's business.

Failure to settle water bills by August 1 makes householders liable to have their water supply cut off. The time when the dog tax tag will be paid has not been fixed.

Ten thousand tags for dogs are on hand. It is said there has been a falling off in recent years in the number of dog licenses taken out.
